We would like to present our program for 2019. Membership includes:

- Attendance to all ASPVB lectures and dinner at Woodward house, University of Melbourne at no cost,
  - Subscription to The Australian Journal of Periodontology and Implant Dentistry
  - Access to the ASP website,
  - A reduced rate of subscription to "Periodontology 2000" and "Journal of Clinical Periodontology",
  - Membership to the Asian Pacific Society of Periodontology
- We offer discounted membership fee for students of the dental health sciences and new graduates for the first two years following graduation.

At our first meeting Prof Ivan Darby with Drs Elizabeth Yu and Fiona Chan will be discussing the new classification system for periodontal and peri-implant diseases was released in 2017. The second meeting presented by Dr Mark Farmer discussing over the counter mechanical and chemical plaque control, what works best for patients. Our final meeting and AGM will be a lecture from Dr Melinda Newnham discussing "Osteonecrosis of the Jaw and Periodontal Disease." Osteonecrosis of the jaw can be a painful, debilitating condition that is notoriously difficult to treat. Periodontal disease processes influence bone turnover potentially influencing the development of ONJ. Therefore, we as dental professionals, may have a role in the prevention of ONJ in "at-risk" patient populations after surgical and non-surgical procedures.
